Basic Science and Clinical Aspects of Botulinum and Other Neurotoxins

Denmark's capital Copenhagen is a beautiful, cosmopolitan, Old World city with a hip, modern vibe. This historic "City of Spires" is also a modern metropolis featuring striking contemporary architecture, innovative design, world class cuisine, abundant green spaces, and a vibrant social scene.

Major Copenhagen landmarks and tourist attractions include the legendary, 19th century Tivoli Gardens Amusement Park, The Little Mermaid bronze statue, the Amalienborg and Christiansborg palaces, exquisite Renaissance-era Rosenborg Castle with its collection of Danish crown jewels and regalia, and the 18th century Lutheran Frederik's Church ("The Marble Church").

Copenhagen is recognized as one of the most eco-friendly cities in the world. It intends to be the world's first carbon neutral city by 2025, and has been named by several international organizations as the best city for livability, sustainability, and other quality of life factors.

This city of timeless elegance also offers many world-renowned art galleries and museums showcasing traditional and contemporary works of art and historical artifacts and collections; architectural masterpieces; numerous restaurants, bars, and cafes to satisfy the most demanding culinary tastes; and nightclubs catering to all musical tastes from pop and cutting-edge dance music to world class jazz.

Among famous Copenhageners are fairy tale author Hans Christian Andersen, Nobel Prize winning physicist, Niels Bohr, and Søren Kierkegaard, the earliest exponent of existentialist philosophy.
